

Book on Ferenc Dávid Received Hungarian Academy of Sciences’ “Book of the Year” Award

The Hungarian Academy of Sciences’ Institute for Literary Studies has just awarded the book on Francis Dávid and Early Unitarianism in Transylvania, authored by Prof. Mihály Balázs and translated by Dr. Judit Gellérd, with the coveted prize of the “Book of the Year”.

This award seems even more poignant, for the book was published by the University of Strasbourg in English only. It has reached major universities and libraries around the world. The Hungarian Academy considered the work as the greatest recent contribution to Hungary’s literary scholarship; its translation into English claims international attention for an important moment in the Hungarian history of language, culture and religion.

This award hopefully will raise American Unitarian Universalists’ awareness of world scholarship on the origins of Unitarianism, a topic at least as relevant as for the Hungarian Academy of Sciences or the University of Strasbourg.

I hope each theology school where UU ministers are being trained, and each UU church library will consider purchasing a copy. Please, kindly pass on this information to other such institutions as well as to your acquisitions librarian.

Cost: $98.00 plus $6.00 for shipping.
